Travel Diary

A private, low-effort way to capture each day of a trip — photos, a line or two, the places you went — and turn it into a keepsake you can share with the people who matter.

Status: hypotheses — to validate

PROBLEM STATEMENT

Travellers want to remember how a trip felt, but their memories end up scattered across the camera roll, group chats and maps — and writing a proper journal feels like homework.

RESEARCH GOALS

1. Understand when and how people capture memories during a trip today.
2. Find the smallest effort that still produces a diary they'd revisit.
3. Learn what they'd keep private vs share, and with whom.

PLANNED METHODS

User interviews
8 × 45 min with recent travellers (Bangkok-based, 22–40). Walk through their last trip's photos and notes.

Diary study
6 travellers log one moment a day for a full trip using a prototype; end-of-trip debrief.

Short survey
Wanderly users: how they keep memories today, what they share, what they'd pay for. Target [N] responses.

Competitive review
Journaling and trip-tracking apps, Stories, and plain notes apps: capture effort, layout, privacy controls.

EARLY HYPOTHESES — from desk research and team assumptions; the interviews will confirm or kill these

H1 · SCATTERED
Memories live in 3+ places (photos, chats, maps), so nothing feels like "the trip".

H2 · BURSTS
People write in short bursts — at night in the hotel or on the flight home — not during the day.

H3 · LOW EFFORT

H4 · SELECTIVE SHARING
The diary is private by default; people share a highlight reel with close friends, not the public.

HOW MIGHT WE…

…turn a day's photos into a diary page in under 30 seconds?

…nudge people to write at the moment they're most likely to?

…make sharing feel safe and personal, not performative?

FEATURE OPPORTUNITIES IN WANDERLY

18 My trip	Auto day pages built from the itinerary and checked-off stops.
Evening nudge	One-line prompt at 9 pm: "Best moment today?" + mood.
14 Map	Map trail of the day, pinned with photos.
24 Stamp	Stamps on pages so the diary and passport feel like one keepsake.
Share	Private by default; share a highlight reel with buddies.

SUCCESS METRICS

- Trips with ≥ 1 diary entry
- Entries per trip day
- Diaries reopened 30 days after the trip
- Highlight reels shared

PRIMARY · THE MEMORY KEEPER

"I take 800 photos a trip and still forget what we ate on day two."

GOALS
- Keep a beautiful record of every trip
- Remember small details: food, people, moods
- Look back on anniversaries

FRUSTRATIONS
- Camera roll is a mess of duplicates
- Notes app entries have no photos or places
- Scrapbook projects never get finished

NEEDS FROM TRAVEL DIARY
- Day pages auto-filled with photos and places
- Room to write longer when she wants
- A keepsake she can export or print

Writes per trip

Software engineer · Singapore · solo & work trips

PRIMARY · THE BUSY EXPLORER

"If it takes more than a minute, I'm not doing it on a trip."

GOALS
- Capture trips with almost zero effort
- See where he's been on a map over the years
- Squeeze sightseeing into work trips

FRUSTRATIONS
- Journaling apps feel like homework
- Too many notifications from travel apps
- Worries about location data privacy

- Auto map trail + photo picks, edit later
- One gentle nudge a day, easy to mute
- Clear, private-by-default location settings

Writes per trip

SECONDARY · THE STORYTELLER

"Stories disappear in 24 hours — I want the trip to stay."

GOALS
- Build a shared diary with her travel group
- Show off highlights in a fun, visual way
- Keep trips cheap and spontaneous

FRUSTRATIONS
- Friends' photos are stuck on their phones
- Social posts feel too public and polished
- Limited storage on her phone

NEEDS FROM TRAVEL DIARY
- Co-written trip diary with trip buddies
- Stickers, stamps and playful layouts
- Share a highlight reel to close friends

Doing	Picks vibes, scrolls Explore, searches "temples", saves a few places.	Opens Kyoto, checks best time and photos, picks dates, invites Tee, sets the pace.	Tweaks each day, adds a stop or two, works through the packing list.	Follows the day plan, ticks off stops, finishes the summit quest.	Unlocks stamps, shares one, saves ideas for the next trip.

Feeling	Excited	Curious	A bit stressed	Thrilled	Proud
Pain points	Too many options; travel feeds feel generic and samey.	Juggling tabs, maps and group chats to agree on a plan.	Last-minute admin and packing anxiety.	Crowds, patchy data and plans that change on the day.	Photos and memories end up scattered across apps.
Opportunities	Vibe-based feed, Top cities inspiration and a one-tap "Surprise me".	Auto-built itinerary from dates + pace, shared live with buddies.	Weather-smart packing list and day-before reminders.	Offline day plan and "what's next nearby" suggestions.	Shareable stamps and a gentle nudge to plan the next trip.
